SPECIAL BULLETIN

FROM

THE BEE HIVE.

Great Bargains in Every Department of Our Store.

WHY?

Because we desire to clear our counters for new spring goods. Our great reduction on silks and dress goods advertised for last week caused a tremendous rush in those departments, and it leads us to desire to still increase our sales, and we now make a still further reduction on all lines of goods to boom the BEE HIVE during the dull season.

If prices will sell goods, and low prices are what you want, visit this great mark-down sale. If you desire to save money, it's for your direct interest to do so.

DRESS GOODS! DRESS GOODS!

Last week we advertised a great mark-down of high cost dress goods to 50c per yard and sold them all in a short time.

For tomorrow we shall place on our counters seventeen pieces dress goods of our finest imported makes, which we have for this sale, and will mark them at one uniform price—50c yard. These goods have sold for 92c and $1.25. They are the lowest prices ever named on desirable, stylish dress goods.

MALT EXTRACTS.

CAUTION!

THE PUBLIC

IS PARTICULARLY CAUTIONED AGAINST

A PHILADELPHIA BEER

WHICH IS BEING FOISTED UPON UNWARY PURCHASERS AS THE GENUINE IMPORTED

JOHANN

HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT!

The article in question is put up in a Squatty Bottle, with German and English label printed in blue and the cork covered with yellow wax, giving the package a German appearance. The unscrupulous purveyor of the imitation is guilty of a double deception in calling their domestic beer "Genuine Imported Malt Extract," and their appeals to the credulity of certain classes of Tradesmen by free gifts of one hundred bottles and upward to those who can be induced to purchase their goods, may cause this American beer to be relined off on the market.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Southern Manufactures for the South

See what the following representative concerns say about this new enterprise:

WESTERN AND ATLANTIC RAILROAD COMPANY, Office Treasurer, Atlanta, Ga., December 22 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I have been using your Blue Black Ink exclusively in my office for the past month, finding it superior to any other I have been able to obtain for my purposes. Yours truly, C. T. WATSON, Treas.

THE STANDARD LIFE AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANY OF DETROIT, MICH. Agency at Atlanta, December 21, 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I have been using your Blue Black Fluid Ink and am much pleased with it. It writes free and easy and copies excellently. You ought to be able to sell all the ink in the south, as the ink has great merit. Yours truly, CLARENCE ANGER.

BROWN & KING, MANUFACTURERS OF COTTON MILL SPECIALTIES, Etc., Etc., Atlanta, Ga. December 21, 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans, City.—Dear Sirs: We desire to congratulate you upon the excellent quality of your Blue Black Condensed Writing and Copying Fluid, which we consider ahead of any ink we have used in an experience of sixteen years. It flows free, does not blur, still makes a clean copy on our letter books, and we find that we can get a better copy when several days old, than from other makes. The point we admire most with the ink is the entire absence of sediment or thick scum in the ink wells. We use ALL the ink from a well and find the bottom as good as the top, thereby saving quite an item in what is generally thrown away. Wishing you success, yours, G. W. ADAIR, REAL ESTATE AND RENTING AGENT, Atlanta, Ga., December 23, 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans.—Dear Sirs: I have tried your Blue Black Writing Fluid, and consider it as good if not better than any I have ever used, and I cheerfully recommend it to the public. Respectfully, G. W. ADAIR.

OFFICE OF GEO. W. SCOTT MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga., December 23, 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans: I have been using your Blue Black Writing and Copying Fluid for some time, and take pleasure in stating it is the most satisfactory ink I have ever used in an experience of over thirty years, and do not think you have exaggerated in the advantages you claim for it on your label. W. M. STEELE.

CAPITAL CITY BANK, Atlanta, Ga., December 24, 1887.—Messrs. Hodge & Evans, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Please send me, as soon as convenient, half gallon of your ink. I am using it exclusively now and consider it equal to any on the market. Very respectfully, NESTOR H. FORBES, Bookkeeper.

The Blue Black Fluid referred to in these letters writes a greenish blue at first, changing to a deep black, and gives a perfect copy. Its advantages are, that it will not fade, smudge, smear, thicken, nor corrode the pen, and it will not remove it, and it will copy a month after writing. This and a full assortment of black and colored school and parlor inks are for sale at

CUTICURA REMEDIES. VITIATED BLOOD Scrofulous, Inherited and Con- tagious Humors Cured by Cuticura.

THROUGHOUT the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Way, Druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and take this opportunity to testify to you that these have permanently cured me of the worst case of scrofulous blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I have ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our country. I take great pleasure in forwarding to you this testimonial, and in the hope that it may be of service to others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial.

I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1880 I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, used them, and was perfectly cured."

TOLD IN A DREAM.

By WALLACE P. REED.

For THE CONSTITUTION.

"It was madness and folly!" And as Julian Blair gave utterance to this exclamation he brought his hand down upon his desk with tremendous force, and his eyes flashed fire.

The young man in his excitement rose from his chair and paced the floor of his office. "I made a fool of myself," he said bitterly.

"Here I am, a young lawyer, without practice, in a little country town, and with hope of bettering my condition. Instead of waiting patiently for something to turn up I have had the audacity to fall in love with the wealthiest heiress in the place, and to-night I forever disgraced myself by asking her to marry me. Tomorrow I am to see her father. There can be but one result. Mr. Howard is a millionaire. He will ask me about my property and my prospects. Well, I have about five dollars in my pocket and I owe five hundred. The old gentleman will regard me as a fortune hunter and request me to discontinue my visits. Yet, the Lord knows I love Alice, and I would devote my life to her."

Blair looked around the office and took a survey of his scanty possessions. A few articles of furniture, and perhaps a hundred law books—this was all.

"It will be useless," he said, "to tell a man like Mr. Howard that I will wait for his daughter. He will simply show me the door, and all will be over."

The young fellow's frank and manly face wore a look of pained embarrassment. He had taken a leap in the dark and was already regretting his hasty action.

The town clock struck the hour of midnight, and Blair retired to his chamber adjoining his office, and made an effort to sleep off his trouble.

For some time he was wide-awake. His eyes burned and his brain was in a whirl. At last he fell into a feverish and disturbed slumber.

In the course of the night a strange thing occurred. Just how it happened he did not clearly understand, but he had a late visitor, who introduced himself as a lawyer from London.

The stranger made profuse apologies for his untimely visit.

"Mr. Blair," he said, "I will not detain you with any preliminaries. You are the heir to the estate of John Blair, one of your uncles who ran away from home when a mere boy, and settled in Liverpool. Your uncle was remarkably lucky. He found friends, went into business, and in the course of time made a fortune. He died a month ago and left you half a million dollars."

Julian proceeded to ask for further information, but the London lawyer pleasantly remarked that good news would keep.

"I must leave in half an hour for New York," he said, "but you may expect me back in a week or so, and then the necessary arrangements will be completed for placing you in possession of your inheritance."

With this the strange visitor vanished, and Julian Blair as he raised himself on his elbow and looked about the room asked himself whether he was awake or dreaming.

A sudden drowsiness overcame him, and when he again opened his eyes it was morning.

"Was it a dream?" he cried, as he dressed himself. "No, it is impossible. There is the chair the man sat in. I remember his features distinctly, and every word he said, and even the tones of his voice. Thank God! It was no vision, it was a reality."

Julian found, after making his toilet, that he was still a little feverish, with a strange fullness in his head, but a glance at the mirror showed that he was looking unusually well.

One thing startled him not a little in the course of the morning. After a brief interview with one of the bankers of the town, he walked out on the street with five hundred dollars in his pocket.

A sudden doubt struck him as he reached the sidewalk. Had he made a mistake in telling the banker of his good fortune? If the whole thing was only a dream, as he sometimes suspected, he had done a very bad thing.

"Fellow!" he said to himself, "I am sick and nervous. How can it be a dream?"

By degrees his confidence was restored, and later in the day when he saw Mr. Howard in the manner was well calculated to impress the millionaire. He told the story of his legacy, and the rich man took him by the hand and told him that no man in the world would suit him better as a son-in-law.

A week passed away delightfully. Blair found himself the lion of the town, but he spent most of his leisure time with his affianced.

One morning the young lawyer arose, cool and clear-headed, without a trace of fever. He looked back upon the events of the past week in amazement. He no longer had any belief in the visit of the man from London. It was a dream, and nothing else.

"I am in a disgraceful fix!" he groaned. "I have lied to Mr. Howard and to Alice. I have borrowed money under false pretenses. Nothing will ever convince people that I am not a swindler."

As the days rolled on, Julian grew thin and pale. He could not bring himself to the point of a confession to Mr. Howard and Alice. Then, too, some of his obligations were coming due. There was apparently no way out of his trouble. The thought of suicide took possession of his mind, and he began to nerve himself for the deed.

The card in Julian's hand bore the address of Henry Morley, Solicitor, Middle Temple, London, and as the owner of the card was ushered into the office the young lawyer looked at him in blank surprise.

It did not take long for Mr. Morley to state his business.

"My young friend," he said rather pompously, "it is a genuine pleasure to me to be the bearer of good tidings. I have been two weeks in this country looking you up. Your uncle, John Blair, died recently in Liverpool, where he left a large estate, and there is a cool half million for you."

"Is it another dream?" whispered Julian.

"I don't understand," said the Englishman, somewhat mystified. "This is no dream; it is business."

Then he went on in his matter-of-fact way to make everything clear.

"You have never called on me before, have you?" asked Julian.

"Certainly not," replied the visitor, "I have just found you, and it was no easy matter, I can tell you."

"All this is very hard for me to believe," replied Julian, "and it will take time to convince me of its reality."

"Well, money ought to be tangible enough," said the lawyer. "If you feel like drawing for a few thousand now I'll arrange it for you."

Such a proposition was not to be refused, and in the course of the day Julian had ten thousand dollars to his credit in the bank.

And then he broke down under the strain. For long weeks he lay either unconscious or delirious, and the watchers by his bedside wondered at his talk.

"His good luck turned his brain for the time," said Mr. Howard.

And this was the very people took of the case. The sober business men of the town refused to believe that a penniless young man, with nothing to back him, but a dream, had secured almost unlimited credit and a rich heiress in the bargain.

"Dreams don't pan out that way," said one of them, and this was the general opinion.

But Julian, warned by the tricks his imagination had played him, lost no time in obtaining his legacy and converting it into substantial investments.

When this was done he led sweet Alice Howard to the altar.

Once he said to her that he was indebted to a dream for his greatest misery and his greatest happiness.

This was all that he could be induced to say. He had passed through a terrible crisis, and during the remainder of his life his greatest desire was to forget all about it.

Governor Marmaduke's Duel.
Killing a Fellow-Officer While the Enemy Were Advancing on Their Troops.

General D. M. Frost has been acquainted with the deceased ever since the opening of the rebellion, and gave a republican report on account of the duel between the deceased governor and Brigadier General Walker, of Tennessee, last night.

At the time this duel was fought, Frost was in command of a division under General Price before Little Rock, and as General Price was in Memphis at that time, General Frost was practically in command of the Confederate forces at Little Rock.

General Frost relates the story of the duel in this manner:

"Both of the men were excellent gentlemen and there was no necessity for a duel. Everybody knows that Governor Marmaduke belongs to an excellent family. Both bore the title of brigadier general, and Marshal Walker was connected with the best families of Tennessee. He was related to the Knox and Folk families of that state, and his own family was of high standing. There was some jealousy existing between the two men on account of rank. Walker was Marmaduke's superior in rank, but in some manner or other jealousy arose between them and General Marmaduke made some reference to General Walker in conversation. It was no long until Marmaduke's remarks were carried to Walker by busy-bodies. Walker demanded that Marmaduke make a retraction, which the latter refused to do. Walker then sent a challenge to General Marmaduke to fight a duel, and he could not do otherwise than accept the challenge. The duel was fought on the 12th inst. at 10 o'clock, and it was a very close one. Both men were armed with pistols, and the duel was fought on a level plain. Walker fired first, and his shot struck Marmaduke in the chest. Marmaduke then fired, and his shot struck Walker in the chest. Both men were wounded, but neither was killed. The duel was continued until 11 o'clock, when both men were exhausted. The duel was then suspended until the next day. On the next day the duel was resumed, and it was fought until 12 o'clock, when both men were again exhausted. The duel was then suspended until the next day. Bonds, Stocks and Money.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE.

ATLANTA, January 14, 1888.

Security trade has been quite active since the week, and the market is almost bare of well known issues at the close. Inquiry has covered every Georgia state bond, and one of $10,000 was sold.

The issue of bonds has nearly all passed into the hands of investors, and if the present market, and the rate of interest they will bear, has not been determined, we believe, we hope the holders of exchanging bonds will be given an opportunity for negotiating for new bonds on a fair basis. We feel that this is only an act of justice to the presents, many of whom have been creditors of the state for a long time, and who bought their bonds

when the credit of the state was not so high as it is at present. Georgia railroad stock, which had been dropping steadily last week, has recovered, and there is considerable inquiry for it now.

Every spring we see a rise in the stock of the industrial point of an early advance than the usual. Atlanta and West Point stock is also in request on the idea that winter dividends will be larger than those of the past year. The market is undoubtedly doing well and competition does not seem to decrease its earning power. The Atlanta and Florida road is running two trains daily to Fayetteville, and will run additional trains as fast as completed. The rails and fastenings bought a short time ago to complete the track of the Atlanta and Florida to Fort Valley will begin to appear next week, and the track will be completed by the end of the month. It is intended that it shall be at least 100 miles in operation by the first of

May. Nearly three-fourths of the stock of the Georgia railroad company has been sold for a period of three months, Messrs. L. J. Hill, E. W.

Marsh and J. W. Rucker having been given power to vote this stock during that time. This places very much of the stock in the hands of one man, and prevents, if there was any disposition to do so,

a bare majority from selling out and leaving the minority at the mercy of the new owners. The Marietta and North Georgia road is receiving liberal support from the people along and adjacent to the Knoxville extension, and great energy is being shown in the prosecution of the work. By the end of the month it will have a new connection with

Knoxville over this road, and be greatly benefited from the trade coming in from along the line.

The Atlanta and Marietta and North

Georgia are natural allies, and soon as they are in position to make traffic arrangements we will see them working harmoniously, no doubt. Sheffield has disappointed its friends this week by displaying a further disposition to weaken, but we still believe that a small pool to buy up the floating stock, which is small in amount, would realize a round profit on the venture in the early spring. Other stocks are dull.

Detective Shackelford Handling a Case in Cochran-Street Improvements—Other News.

MACON, Ga., January 14.—[Special.]—In obedience to notice in the morning paper, by order of Hon. C. C. Anderson, several sub-committees met in the reading room of the public library to arrange for the reception of Hon. J. G. Carlisle.

Mr. C. L. Bartlett was secretary of the meeting.

The proceedings were commenced by Mr. J. E. Campbell, who read telegrams from Mr. Carlisle, stating that he would arrive in Macon on the 24th instant.

After a motion of Mr. Campbell it was decided to ask Mr. Carlisle to make his address in the Academy of Music at 8 o'clock. The committee, consisting of Mayor Price and Aldermen Horne, Powell and Davis, that was appointed by the city council, met the sub-committee.

On motion of Mr. Campbell, Mayor Price was added to the committee to go to Atlanta and accompany Mr. Carlisle to Macon; to finance committee Mr. Davis was added; to committee on personal entertainment, Mr. Powell; to committee on speaking and general arrangements, Mr. Horne.

Mr. Powell moved that Mr. Campbell be authorized to accept on behalf of the city the committee, consisting of Mayor Price and Aldermen Horne, Powell and Davis, that was appointed by the city council, met the sub-committee.

Mr. Campbell moved that Mr. Carlisle be invited to give a lecture on the 24th instant.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK.

Some Miraculous Escapes From Death.

THE WRECK CAUSED BY UNKNOWN PARTIES—How Engineer Bell Dug Out of a Coal Pit—Fireman Howell Perhaps Fatally Injured.

From the Rome, Ga., Tribune.

About 7:30 last night a frightful smashup occurred on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad in Forestville.

The freight train that reaches Rome at 7:30 p. m. was waiting in on regular time. The train consisted of fourteen cars and was drawn by engine No. 94.

There is a steep grade just beyond the switch and all trains are ordered to shut off steam. The orders were obeyed in this instance, but they had not been the result would have been different.

The train came thundering up the switch signal showed that everything was all right, and on dashed the engine under the tremendous impetus given by the down grade. But suddenly the engine dashed off the track and began running on the crossties.

and finally toppled over on one side, followed by the rest of the train. The engine No. 94 was detached from the tender and lay over on one side.

The tender was just behind, overturned so that all the coal had been turned out. The first freight car was turned crosswise on the track. It was loaded with pine wood, which was thrown out and scattered over the ground.

The two cars following were, also, box cars, and loaded with household goods. The bed clothing, furniture, etc., were strewn along the western side of the track.

Next came four loaded cars, which were turned on their sides and piled up in a conglomeration heap. The rest of the train stood on the track uninjured. The greatest wonder of the affair was that no one was killed.

There were only three in the train's crew injured. They were as follows: John Bell, engineer; bruised and badly scratched. The story of his escape is best told by himself.

The accommodation train, No. 1, which leaves Rome at 8:15 p. m., was run out to the wreck. Seated in one of the cars was the hero of the night, Mr. Bell said: "I was coming into Rome on time with a train of fourteen cars. I had just taken off my overalls and put them in my sack. As we drew near the switch I looked ahead, and saw all was right. I then put in the train, and the engine started. I was about to get up on top of the window. Piled on top of me was all the coal in the tender, while the water from the boiler poured over me. I was about to get up on top of the window. THE PRECIOUS METALS

Which Underlie the Soil of Georgia.

SUPERIOR TO ALABAMA OR TENNESSEE

Starting Facts and Figures Which Show Wherein the Supremacy of the State of Georgia Consists.

What a royal empire God made, when he made Georgia!

For a century she led her sisters in development, and as New York stood to the north so stood she to the south.

Within the past few years Alabama and Tennessee seem disposed to challenge her supremacy. They use their claims on coal and iron. Somehow or other the store-centers of the iron darry settled about Birmingham and Sheffield.

Recent developments show that Georgia has better iron ore than either Alabama or Tennessee, and in exhaustless quantities!

Watch the storm centers shift!

And as they change their bearings, see Atlanta become the great iron and steel center of the south!

Do you want the straws that note the coming current of the trade-winds?

The Georgia Pacific road carries daily car loads of Georgia ore to Birmingham and Sheffield.

Mr. Hines M. Smith is making $150 a day profit shipping pig iron ore to Birmingham, and he cannot meet a tenth of the demand.

Georgia ore is shipped from Cartersville by the train load daily to Carnegie Brothers in Pittsburgh, who can never find in Alabama mines what they want.

Chattanooga buys every pound of her steel-making ore from Cranberry (N. C.) and will buy from Georgia when her Bessemer mills are opened.

The reason of this is that there is but little manganese ore in Alabama and Tennessee, and no Bessemer ore. The immense mines of Alabama could not furnish enough ore to run the steel plant at Bessemer a month.

In Georgia there are magnetic ore in enormous deposits and of unequal quality.

Here are some analyses, for instance, from Lumpkin county, a county in which no one thought of iron. They are made by Professor Pratt. One specimen showed 71.01 per cent of metallic iron and .005 of phosphorus. Another 70.94 of metallic iron and .007 of phosphorus, and neither with a trace of sulphur and remarkably free of silica. There are dozens such specimens, each taken from different pits.

There is another specimen yielding 69.10 per cent of metallic iron, with 1.04 of silica, and no trace of phosphorus or sulphur.

But here is the test. Mr. D. G. Wylie, president of the company owning the property, sent specimens of the ore to Chattanooga and Pittsburgh. The Chattanooga firm replied immediately that they would give $7.50 a ton for the ore, (good ore sells at $2.50) and would take 300 tons a day. The orders from Pittsburgh were large, and the writer said if such ore was to be found in sufficient quantity it would save such firms as the Carnegies from importing ore from Europe.

Georgia ores are rapidly coming into notice. The Hon. Charles Dougherty sent some specimens to the Hon. W. L. Scott, of Erie, who submitted them to his own chemist. The result was he offered Mr. Dougherty $30,000 for his property and is coming to Georgia in person to inspect it. Mr. Samuel Noble has been inspecting iron lands in Polk county and has made large investments there. The Rome Land company has mountains of land that will result in a half-dozen furnaces in less than so many years. A company has just leased a portion of the "Etowah" property, the best combination property in America, and is preparing to ship large quantities of ore. In Cataocha and Whitfield county there are important developments that pan out richly.

Professor Pratt says: "The triangle between Pickens and Rabun county on the north, swerving around the Alabama line, nearly touching Atlanta, is richer in minerals than Cornwall district in England. I have found tin, the most valuable metal, except gold, and have traced it for miles. There are sulphurates of the finest quality, which, if developed, would stop the importation of sulphur from Sicily and the Mediterranean. These are in exhaustless quantities. As for iron, there are brown ore in enormous quantities, and enough magnetites and bessemer ore to run the furnaces of this country."

"Why is it that we know so little about the mineral wealth of that section?"

"Because the legislature stopped the geological survey of the state before it was completed and before our resources were defined. For the rest, that section is thinly settled, unpenetrated by railroads, and is really a terra incognita. If the industrial world knew what was hidden in those mountains and uplands, we should see such a rush in that section as was never surpassed at Birmingham."

Why has this development been so retarded?

1. The lack of railroad facilities, which has left much of the now developing region a terra incognita.

2. The immense funds of iron elsewhere, which absorbed attention. It is only the eager search for the better magnetites and Bessemer ores (without which Alabama's furnace is doubtful), that has shown Georgia to have them of best quality and in great quantity.

The fact stands that we have them.

We are shipping them daily to Birmingham, Chattanooga, and other points, and the amount we ship is limited solely by the amount we are mining. See what Professor Pratt says of Lumpkin county iron ore:

"The magnetic ore of this belt are remarkable for their purity and absolute freedom from all deleterious substances. The belt is one and a half miles wide and extends for a distance of probably not less than 100 to 150 feet of ore-bearing strata."

Again he speaks of Lumpkin county ore "as equal in quality to that of the island of Elba."

Professor Caldwell says of it: "I have compared it with the famous Cranberry ore and it is exactly the same class of ore and grade."

It is not only in Lumpkin that these finer ores can be found but all over north Georgia. From Polk county to the state line they show up wherever they are looked for. There is no doubt that Georgia is richer in this class of ore than any state or section in this country.

What shall we do about it?

Shall we continue to ship our ore to build up distant cities? Shall Mr. Wylie accept the offer of $7.50 a ton for 300 tons daily for Chattanooga, and double as much for Pittsburgh and ship our raw material unworked? Shall Cartersville and Polk county continue to strip their hills and send ore at a nominal price to feed the furnaces of Birmingham?

Or shall we build furnaces in Georgia and utilize our matchless resources for our own upbuilding?

A steel plant in Atlanta to cost $500,000, fed with Bessemer ore and manganese from our own neighborhood would do more for Atlanta than two or three new railroads. It would bring millions of outside capital into Georgia. The working of pig iron may be easily overdone—the working of Bessemer ore never can be.

The Constitution shall let the world know precisely what we have in north Georgia in the way of iron ore—of such quality as cannot be found in Alabama or Tennessee. To clear the decks for this work let it be remarked in advance, that this work shall be done at our own cost, and that there shall be no dollar's interest in any of the properties or localities discussed!

Professor Pratt is one of the best analytical chemists in America. It was he who discovered the phosphate beds of South Carolina, and he developed that industry through his own efforts. More than $16,000,000 was invested in South Carolina in the phosphate industry. It was he who also developed the sulphuric acid business in the south. He built the first chemical works in the south and has since built eight more. He says he is sure of the outcome and development of north Georgia than he ever was.
